Course description

As a result of the digital revolution, today's pupils and students may find traditional activities, such as reading, exceedingly uninteresting, whereas they are naturally drawn to audiovisual information (e.g., videos, photos, and audio resources).

On the other hand, school teachers most often receive a traditional education, and may feel unprepared to communicate with their students using digital jargon and tools.

This course will provide participants a broader understanding of how to apply ICT tools in the classroom, and improve digital competencies for education.

Overall, it will promote educational excellence by enabling teachers, trainers, headmasters, and other educators to integrate new technology and social media into teaching and learning.

The course will provide a complete and all-encompassing review of ICT and social technologies for education. Participants will gain insight into the top teaching and student learning apps, digital solutions, and social platforms.

Requirements

Suggested computer proficiency: Basic

Learning outcomes

The course will help the participants to:

- Get a sense of the most important new technologies, as well as the expanding trend of incorporating ICT into education;
- Discover about the most relevant social media platforms and how they may be used in education and learning;
- Acquire skills in how to use photos and videos in your classroom and how to make them;
- Gain an understanding of how to create a website or a blog quickly and easily;
- Become competent in the fundamentals of developing an e-learning platform;
- Grasp about the most engaging, motivating, and innovative apps and web solutions for making education more engaging, motivating, and inventive;
- Learn innovative techniques and best practices to integrate new technology into education by gaining a fresh perspective on ICT tools.
